The Internationale Designzentrum (IDZ = international design centre) in Berlin sees itself as a communication platform between politics, industry, society and culture. Questions concerning all aspects of design are handled in diverse exhibitions and events. In its role as a centre of competence, the IDZ also sees itself as an adviser to its members as well as a design-oriented company with a focus on the mediation of innovations and new ideas in design and quality management. In the premises near Friedrichstrasse in Berlin, workstations are closely intertwined with the exhibition areas and are in the direct vicinity of the rooms used for events.
